TRENCHING & EXCAVATING NUCA ACCREDITED COMPETENT PERSON TRAINING

Excavation is the most dangerous of all construction operations. More workers are killed or seriously injured in and around excavations than in other phases of construction work, and that's why the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) requires a competent person to oversee all excavation and trenching jobsites. The competent person must have specific training in, and be knowledgeable about, soil analysis, the use of protective systems, and the requirements of OSHA Subpart P.

NUCA's Excavation Safety Competent Person Training program helps contractors train the competent person and workers. Although the responsibility for designating a competent person is the sole responsibility of the contractor, this program is designed to simplify the task by providing participants with the information and training needed to become a competent person.

The Competent Person Training Seminar covers the CAL-OSHA Title 8, Section 1540 through 1541.1 and Fed OSHA 1926 subpart P requirements pertaining to excavations, trenching and sloping techniques, protective systems and soils classification with an introduction to confined space entry safety. Our comprehensive training is an important part of keeping your company compliant with current OSHA regulations. The course is roughly 7-8 hours providing .8 CEU'S or 8 hours of Continuing Education Units. There is a 50 question test at the end of the course to show comprehension of the material covered. A comprehensive handbook, a certificate of completion, a wallet card, continental breakfast and lunch are included.
